STATE CAPITOL NEWS

By MELVIN LORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 30—(UP) — While general agitation against the 2½ per cent retail sales tax appears to have died down, the fight is still being carried forward.

In a suit brought in superior court there against state officials, 550 Southern California merchants challenge the constitutionality of the sales tax act and ask for the return of taxes paid under protest. Individual sums sought range from $50 to $1000.

Numerous similar court actions brought by operators of "tango" or "lotto" games in the south also are on file in court.

State Treasurer Charles G. Johnson, an avowed candidate for governor next year, met Governor Rolph the other day at a club meeting. "Hello, governor," Rolph saluted the state treasurer. Johnson said nothing, but laughed. Later Rolph commented: "Huh, that's all he could do."

* * *

Good news for 14 Los Angeles county and 12 Orange county school districts. The state board of public building reconstruction has approved rebuilding projects in those districts totaling $3,549,621. The work is necessary as a result of the destruction caused by earthquakes in the area, and the money will be provided from the $5,000,000 fund voted by congress for this purpose as soon as federal officials check and approve the projects.

Regardless of what happens to California's state liquor control act, peace officers of the state have pledged themselves to enforce the law. Representatives of the officers meeting with members of the state board of equalization assured the state officials they would abide by the statute.

Incidentally the board has ruled that the new liquor control law effective December 5 will not change the old law prohibiting the sale of liquor within one-mile of the University of California industrial schools and similar institutions.

Rolland A. Vandegrift, state director of finance, believes he likes the smell of printers ink. He confirmed reports that he was negotiating for the purchase of the Stockon Independent, a daily morning publication.

At that time, he estimates, the general fund will owe special funds $10,830,000 in borrowed money, and will have registered $1,950,293 in warrants. There will be general fund cash amounting to $1,846,430.

KETTLE HATCHES TURKEY BROOD

EL NIDO, Cal., Nov. 30—(UP)—When Mrs. George Miller of Plainsburg decides to have turkeys she gets them, even if doing so means accomplishing the apparently impossible, she proved to friends.

Mrs. Miller was given eight turkey eggs by a neighbor. She put them under a hen, but the bird deserted the nest when the Miller family moved.

Mrs. Miller then put the eggs in the oven, only to get them so hot she could not handle them.

By all rules, the embryo turkeys should have been chilled to death, then killed by the heat.

But Mrs. Miller, still determined, placed the eggs in a box, kept them warm with a teakettle—and soon had eight healthy young turkeys.

LOS ANGELES TO HAVE CHINATOWN

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 30—(UP)—An authentic bit of Asia will be transplanted to the streets of Los Angeles, should plans approved by the Los Angeles Planning Commission materialize.

George L. Eastman, former president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, obtained the approval of the commission of plans to build a new Chinatown here, modeled exactly after the original Oriental architecture.

The Chinese Chamber of Commerce is behind the movement, believing the "village" would become an outstanding attraction for tourists.

An architect has been sent to China to study plans.

CAN YOU IMAGINE LILIES LIKE THESE?

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 30—(UP)—A lilly that grows for hundreds of years and has a scent that cures human ailments, but kills mosquitoes would be fine, but officials of the state department of agriculture are dubious about the existence of such a flower.

As a result plant officials investigated literature of the so-called "Lilly Growers' Association" and decided that prospective purchasers should be warned against any such claims.

They agree with claims in the advertising that "there is nothing else in the world like it."

192 COUNTY MEN TO WORK ON CIVIL WORKS PROJECTS

133,000 To Be Employed In State. Work Expected To Be Under Way By Dec. 1

By MELVIN LORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 30—(UP)—Of the 133,000 persons who will obtain employment in California this winter under the federal civil works program, 192 will come from Nevada county, officials announced here.

While plans for the new relief program have not been completed, it is expected to be well under way by December 1.

The first jobs will go to persons already on relief rolls. It is estimated that 80,000 persons will be taken care of in this manner. The remaining 53,000 jobs will be distributed among needy, worthy persons.

Under present arrangements the work is to be handled entirely by federal and local governmental officials. An original plan outlined by the state department of public works calling for highway employment was rejected by the civil works administration. As a result the work will not be handled by the state, although the highway project program has been turned over to the federal representatives as a suggested means of getting the work under way as quickly as possible.

Every community, it was pointed out, will receive its share of the work in proportion to its needs. Individual projects are limited to $5,000.

The wage scale provides for the payment of 45 cents per hour for unskilled labor, and $1.10 per hour for skilled workers. Men will work on the basis of a 30-hour week. Applications for work should be made to federal employment agencies until other arrangements have been made.

The civil works program anticipates the spending of approximately $20,000,000 in California. While many of the projects probably will be concerned with highway work, all types of public works will be considered for inclusion in the relief campaign.

Robbers Break Into Calif. Restaurant. $125 Is Taken

Glass Is Broken On Front Door To Gain Entrance. A. Mahne Discovers Men When Arriving at 6 O'Clock. Attempt Is Also Made To Enter Truckee Drug Store

The California Restaurant was broken into Wednesday morning around six o'clock and $125 stolen from the establishment.

When A. Mahne, one of the owners of the restaurant, arrived to open up about six o'clock, he discovered two men in the front of the restaurant. Upon hearing him enter the rear of the building they made their escape.

The entrance was made thru the small front door, where they had partly removed the moulding which held the glass. This taking too much time, the glass was broken and entrance gained. The glass was scattered near the entrance to the door and considerable blood stains were found.

Upon investigation by the owners it was estimated that about $125 was stolen.

E. L. Loynd of the Truckee Drug found upon opening his store that an attempt had been made to enter his place. The lock had been tampered with but evidently proved too difficult to break.

FARMERS JOIN IN HUGE STRIKE SHOWN IN FILM

Charles R. Rogers' first production of the 1933-34 season for Paramount, named "Golden Harvest," is coming to the Donner Theatre on next Sunday night.

It is an up-to-the-minute story of the farm strikes in the great Northwest and pictures the turbulent scenes in the Chicago Wheat Pit which brought about the strike.

The film features Richard Arlen, Chester Morris, Genevieve Tobin and Julie Haydon in the romantic roles. Comedy leads are played by Roscoe Ates and Elizabeth Patterson.

Two romances are interwoven in this story of the struggle between two brothers. Born on a farm, they separate when they reach manhood. One goes to Chicago, becomes a wheat speculator, drives the price of wheat down.

As the farmers suffer from the drive against grain prices, are forced into foreclosures, the brother on the farm becomes their radical leader.

The governor looked startled, hesitated and with considerable dignity added:

"I mean for a visit, of course."

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

By the President of the United States

I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, do set aside and appoint Thursday, the thirtieth day of November, 1933, to be a day of Thanksgiving for all our people. May we on that day in our churches and in our homes give humble thanks for the blessings bestowed upon us during the past year by Almighty God. May we recall the courage of those who settled a wilderness, the vision of those who founded the nation, the steadiness of those who in every succeeding generation have fought to keep pure the ideal of equality of opportunity and hold clear the goal of mutual help in time of prosperity as in time of adversity.

May we ask guidance in more surely learning the ancient truth that greed and selfishness and striving for undue riches can never bring lasting happiness or good to the individual or his neighbors.

May we be grateful for the passing of the dark days; for the new spirit of dependence on one another; for the closer unity of all parts of our wide land; for the greater friendship between employers and those who toil; for a clearer knowledge by all nations that we seek no conquests and ask only honorable engagements by all peoples to respect the lands and rights of their neighbors; for the brighter day to which we can win through by seeking the help of God in a more unselfish striving for the common bettering of mankind.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the United States to be affixed

(Signed)

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT

GIVE THOUGHT TO THE UNFORTUNATE

Give thanks! But give thought to the work still undone.

"During the past few months 40 per cent of the temporarily unemployed have been returned to work," said President Roosevelt in a recent radio address. "But we must not forget that this winter will be a period of increased difficulities for the remaining 60 per cent.

The danger from tuberculosis has been lessened for those again employed. Once again they will know the joy of having sufficient food, shelter and the freedom from worry. This is something for which to give thanks.

But give thought to the 60 per cent still unemployed, sick with worry, weakened by malnutrition—faced with the ever prevalent disease tuberculosis, which preys upon such helplessness.

Side by side with relief through this fifth winter of depression, must go the work of the Tuberculosis Association, protecting the health of those weakened by the long fight, tending to this great human need.

Beyond this must the tuberculosis work be carried, to those now re-employed, so many of whom still carry the marks of their battle.

Give thanks! But give thought to the work still undone. Be generous when you buy Christmas Seals; and if you have found a new job, give, so that your companions in idleness may still have health when their chance comes.

TAX CONFUSION

The current issue of State Government contains an article about tax legislation that ought to interest voters. State legislatures during this year have enacted more than 1,200 new tax laws. They were driven to this seeming excess by the financial difficulties all of them faced and none of them solved very successfully.

As old sources of revenue failed to fill the coffers, new ones had to be sought. Budgets were largely out of balance, and tax legislation in many cases was tried as a means to right that condition. Some of the new laws were intended to help liquidate the frozen assets of past-due taxes. Others were modifications of laws relating to delinquincies, reducing them where possible and providing easier methods of payment. Other laws aimed at reduction of property taxes and the imposition of substitute taxes, such as the sales tax, personal income tax, and so on.

With all this legislation, the situation remains as serious as ever. More and more taxes are becoming delinquent. Economies have been forced in many services, some of them threatening schools and health work, while the need for huge relief funds has increased.

It is all a terrific muddle which could be only partly solved by the return of general prosperity. Taxes should be reasonable and just. At present they are a hodge-podge of schemes to raise money. No wonder the results are increasingly uncertain and the taxpayers increasingly reluctant to pay even when they have money.

BUT THE BIRD STILL FLIES!

Sketching on the California Coast

On the bits of beach lay all sorts of gaudy sea-weeds, washed up by the waves; vivid green ulvas intermingled with crimson sea aprons; brownish feather boas, as if fallen from a lady's neck, entwining the shimmering strands of bladder-kelp or the parti-colored leaves of the iridea, dedicated to Iris, goddess of many colors. Here, too, I discovered empty abalone shells, opalescent and lovely as Pompeian tear-bottles, and, once in a great while, a chiton or sea-slug mailed in plate-armor like a knight of old.

At low tide how delightful the pools, lying in the hollows of the rocks like aquamarines, of the nereid green of Minerva's eyes—their dark-toned fissures animate with life and mottled with pink corallines edged with silver! Cockle shells, purple and pearl-tipped, crawled by the score among the sea-weeds—the trees of these naiad gardens; owl-limpets and sea-urchins of varied colors clung in the deeper clefts; while hundreds of anemones, mauve, rose or pale green, carpeted the deepest pools like daisy fields in spring-time.

Lying on the flat rocks, I watched the wonders of these water gardens: their shells and colored rocks, their forests of sea palms; their big actiniae awake, with myriad tentacles afloat, sensitive awaiting their prey; and their star-fish near the beds of fat mussels.

Some of the most beautiful of these pools lie in the fissures on the south shore of the peninsula, which lee coast is gentle in character—a pastoral andante after the agitato of the north shore—serene, limpid, suave as the shores of classic lands. Neptune usually stills its waters as

"Along the surface of the tides
His sea-green chariot smoothly glides;
Hushed by his wheels the billows lie;
The storm clouds banish from the sky."

—In "Sketching in California," by Ernest Peixotto.

THE CARAVAN

I saw a pretty sight today—
A little van of colors gay;
Green, tilted top that made a roof
All tidy, tight and weather-proof;
A little smoking chimney-stack;
Green panels painted, sides and back,
With pretty horseshoes, bright as gold;
A half-door big enough to hold
Four tousled topknots peering out
Like nestlings, on the world about.

And on the wooden ledge below
A gypsy man with eyes of sloe;
His waistcoat and his neckerchief
The color of an autumn leaf;
Guiding his horse with skilful rein,
Bright ribbons plaited in its mane,
And on its harness, polished brass
Winking away at all who pass.

There, like a scrap of gypsy song,
Jaunty and free, they moved along
The rumbling wheels, the trotting feet
Making a measure blithe and sweet
To suit the little home so gay
Journeying through the golden day.

Politically Speaking

By GEORGE E. HELMER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 30—(UP)—Most advocates of a special election or legislative session to change California's liquor regulations have only one major thought in mind, money, according to an official group here which thinks the law should be given a chance to prove its worth.

Money in one form or another is behind every movement for a change these people insist. Taxes, more profit for liquor dealers, possibilities of patronage and graft, more leeway for city officials to say who shall and shall not deal in liquor—these are some of the developments which might follow a change.

Some of the officials who feel this way, and who think the present law should not be disturbed, are prominent in the state government. For obvious reasons, they refused to be quoted.

"General provisions of the present law," said one, "are so practical and sensible that they do not open the way for graft, patronage or big profits to anybody. And that's where most of the trouble lies.

"Demands for some method of taxing liquor are fair enough. But most of the other demands are tainted by the odor of a desire for private gain.

"The present law makes liquor easily available to the home, and wine and beer available to the restaurant and hotel. But there are not enough restrictions. Hotel men can't get rich. Local officials haven't enough power. Retailers cannot make a big profit, because bottled goods will be added to the shelves of chain stores and sold as just another commodity, at a fair profit. Sale will be so general that prices will be held down. This will benefit the public, but it won't permit anybody to get rich quicky."

Other points brought out by this group in arguing for retention of the present law, at least until it has been tried and some definite improvement measures evolved, include:

Unscrupulous law officers will not have so much opportunity to "shake down" violators.

License regulations are so liberal and so fairly easy to obtain that anybody would be foolish to pay a cent in protection money.

State controlled liquor stores would open the way for patronage and possible graft, and would keep prices up, while admittedly returning a profit to the state.

Limitations of licenses, with designation resting upon local officials, would pave the way for widespread discrimination, favoritism and graft.

The present law was designated to make liquor plentiful for the home and to eliminate the saloons. There is considerable agitation for serving of cocktails in public dining rooms, and certain aspects of this problem have not been settled finally. But if public serving were permitted, every eating place could

EXERCISE WILL HELP YOU GET THOSE MAE WEST CURVES

By JACQUELINE HUNT

THE Mae West fashions that have been sweeping the country by storm, in the past few months are causing consternation among women whose figures just won't seem to fit into slender-waisted, broad-shouldered, romantic costumes. Training the too thin or the too plump figure into the ideal proportions called for is a real achievement.

MISS HUNT

Thinness of body is really the more serious problem of the two since building up the body is rather slow process of dieting — and then there is no guarantee that the extra pounds will appear where you want them to. For the plumper woman, foundation garments and girdles will often pull the figure into shapliness. Exercise, however, is the real controlling agent if you wish to fit into hour-glass fashions.

Posture is another snag in the way of Mae Westian figures. After years of wearing mannish clothes, dieting and turning figures into dashing, nonchalant boyish lines, shoulders have acquired disgraceful habits. Many of them sag or droop and others are as stiff and expressionless as though they were facing some hopeless task. Expressive, dignified shoulders should set on a straight line with the backbone, yet not seem stiff or unnatural. Keep them hanging free from the neck, easy and graceful. Here, too, exercise seems to be the only way to put them to rights.

The exercise that is simplest seems to be the most constructive. Sit perfectly straight and move both shoulders, backward and forward in a rotary movement. After a few minutes, stop and exercise first one shoulder and then the other one in exactly the same way.

For keeping the waistline trim the best idea is to join the nearest gymnasium or YWCA. to pull off the excess flesh. If you can try stunts on a horizontal bar or twist your body while suspended in midair, you will use all of your muscles and make your waistline slender and graceful. If it is impossible for you to use a gymnasium, then use this bending exercise:

Stand erect with the hands on the hips. Take a deep breadth and bend the head to the left side and toward the floor swinging your body in the opposite direction, making a curve something like a hourseshoe Hold it a minute, straightening up and bend in the opposite direction. After your body has limbered up a bit try rotating your torso around your hips, rapidly.

Deep breathing, we hear, is also good for a strong diaphragm, slender waistline and high, firm breast. Certainly deep breathing strengthens certain muscles and it is worth trying. Exercises using the arms are also good for developing the busts and expanding the chest. And here is another exercise for the chest—and shoulders:

Put a lot of pep and energy into your exercises if you want them to do any good. All to often a woman will go through her exercise routine without really straining a muscle. It takes energy, will power and persistance to really benefit from exercise; that is why games or physical education classese are so much more apt to give results. The elements of play and competition make you unconsciously strain and use every muscle in your body.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Discussing Euthanasia, the Theory of Doing Away With Incurables

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

THE Welfare Council of New York City sends me a statement from the chairman of its health division, Dr. Haven Emerson, and suggests that the readers of this column might be interested in having it discussed. The message concerns 'Euthanasia,' brought up in a proposal by the German Minister of Justice, "to authorize physicians to end the suffering of incurable patients." A message from Berlin reported a plan to give preference to the healthy in the distribution of relief funds. "From now on," says this dispatch, "families in which there is tuberculosis, cancer, or other serious disease, are not likely to receive the extra help formerly given them. Even the regular aid to them may be cut." I need not predict what a storm of comment a suggestion like this will arouse, though there are few doctors who have not at times been entreated, by those in acute and hopeless suffering, to be relieved of their miseries.

* * *

EUTHANASIA means a happy death, an easy one, or death for some good purpose. In very early times and among savages in some parts of the world today, the aged, crippled and so-called incurables are forced out of their camps or voluntarily leave to die of starvation and exposure. The young who seem unfit are thrown out to die. But such practices are abandoned as civilization is advanced.

* * *

IT IS true the physician sees patients who, he might think, would be better off dead. He might even think it reasonable to add to a sedative dose that would allow them to pass on with less pain. He also is thinking to himself, "Who am I to say when anyone shall die? How do I know who is really incurable?" Those of us who started thirty or more years ago would have made a sorry mess of things with such a provision.

* * *

THE incurables of that day in great numbers live in comfort and fair health today. And today's incurables may be quite healed by tomorrow. In those early days, I had a certain woman patient with tuberculosis who lost appetite and grew thin as a shadow. Much lung tissue was destroyed and many times I sat by her thinking every gasping breath might be the last. She is now eighty-three, in good health in spite of frailty, full of interest in living, and a perpetual joy to her family.

* * *

THE insane in former times were thrown into dungeons and left to their sufferings. Now we keep them in hospitals, give them intelligent treatment, and a large percent are returned to their families and friends, able to lead useful lives. Only a few years ago a patient with paresis was doomed to a hopeless, useless existence and an early death. Today, treatments by infection with malarial fever and the use of artificial fever machines are curing hundreds.

TAHOE REGION NEWS

By "SWANEE"

The radio news reporter this morning carried to us the grim announcement of the lynching last night of Thomas Thurmond and Jack Holmes, brutal kidnap slayers of young Brocke Hart of San Jose. Having lived in that peaceful little town for years myself, and being familiar with many of the praticulars in the tragedy, I feel a word or two on the subject uppermost in the minds of the public at this moment not untimely.

On every hand this morning I hear, "Well, I'm usually a strict law-abiding citizen, but confidentially, I'm a bit thrilled to know they got their just deserts." It's a blessed relief to know that their vicious careers are finally ended." "They got just what they deserved." Etc, etc. It is surprising indeed, to hear ordinarily mild mannered, unobstructive citizens voice these vehement remarks, their faces tense, their eyes smoldering with subdued fury. Which all goes to prove that in spite of our veneer of education and refinement, beneath the exterior of most humans there still flows a few drops of the red blood of our fearless, valiant forebears.

In ordinary cases I believe the law should be allowed to take its proper course. Mob violence is irrational and in itself criminal, but this pair of thugs at least, cannot escape by any hook or crook of the so called law, which somehow fluctuates mysteriously and often unfairly in weighing out the balance of justice.

In this particular instance I am noncommittal, neither condoning nor condemning, but I will venture to say that if this manner of punishment were meted out to each and every kidnaper (whose guilt had been established without the shadow of a doubt) there would be fewer crimes of this atrocious nature. Our sympathy, sincere tho it be, cannot atone to the family of the boy whose young life, just on the threshold of manhood, was so ruthlessly and needlessly snuffed out, nor can it, unfortunately, ease the endless hours of grief, despair and shame brought upon the criminal's innocent wife and babies who must bear the stigma of this disgraceful act for the remainder of their lives.

The burning question uppermost in the minds of parents everywhere is "Whose son or daughter will be next." The holidays this year will be a cheerless mockery to these two grief-stricken families, but if this terrible crime, with its subsequent gruesome termination, serves to act as a deterrent to other potential kidnapers, this deplorable outrage will not all have been in vain.

A mild furor of excitement was created here this week, when it was noised that Courtland Howard, or Samuel Daugherty, as he is known in the East, found shot to death presumably by gangster enemies on the Skyline Boulevard last Monday, had been a resident of Tahoe and vicinity all summer. Early last year he rented the F. M. Greenwood house near the Stanley Dollar Estate, about three miles northeast of Tahoe City, where a week later they lost all their clothing and possessions when the house burned to the ground during the early morning hours. They took refuge at Tahoe Inn where they spent several days, later renting the Hazel Mein house at Tahoe Park where they remained until the middle of August. While here they assumed the name of Jack Wilson, the family consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wilson, their daughter Anna, Mrs. Wilson's father, Samuel .Montgomery, and a maid. They appeared to be well supplied with money always, and were known to be "good spenders." The family was recognized when the papers published a picture of Montgomery, Costable Carl Bechdolt making the identification. Their mysterious sudden automobile and airplane trips caused much suspicion, but nothing occurred while here serious enough to warrant their arrest. They are believed now, to be the parties who smuggled a machine gun thru Tahoe some months ago. All of which makes Tahoeites sigh for the "good old days" when crime and criminals were something to read about and not to contend with.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Sproule, accompanied by their daughters Jane, Ann and Sally, are spending the Thanksgiving holidays at Tahoe. Mrs. Sproule's sister and husband Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Shumacher of Auburn, visited them over the week end.

Fire Warden Brown and his family of Tahoe Park left Tahoe for Nevada City where they will spend the winter months.

The Tahoe Grammar School is having a vacation this week due to the Teachers Institute meeting at Sacramento. School will be resumed again on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Armstrong left on Monday for Wendel, Idaho, where they will spend the holidays with Mr. Armstrong's mother, Mrs. E. A. Armstrong, who has not seen her son for seven years.

On Tuesday night Mrs. A. W. Jost of the Homewood Hotel suffered what friends believe to have been a mild stroke of paralysis. Alone at the time, she made an effort to call for help, falling and striking her head upon a wash stand, badly bruising her face. Bill Johnston, who brought in her mail the next morning, discovered her predicament and summoned friends, who cared for her until she was taken by them to her home in Sacramento, where her condition remains about the same, according to latest reports, her left side having been affected, useless. Her many friends here at the lake join in wishing her a thorough and speedy recovery.

On Sunday morning at 1:01 A. M. Tahoe was visited by a short but snappy earthquake. No damage was reported and most of the inhabitants were unaware of its occurrence.

Mrs. Otis Hursey and son Roger Phillip are making a visit to her mother's home in Fallon, Nevada. They will return in time for Thanksgiving at Tahoe.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Worden and family and Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Valentine were Reno visitors on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Russell of Lake Forest left on Monday for Portola where he has been transferred by the Standard Oil Co. for the winter months.

There will be a Ski Club meeting at the Clubhouse on Friday night and all members are urged to attend.

The beautiful sunny weather Tahoe has been enjoying has changed today, with a wind rustling thru the pines and dark clouds obscuring the sun, which may or may not presage a snow or rain storm. Such a long and unusually mild Fall has not been experienced by even some of the oldest Tahoe inhabitants.

On Saturday night the Tahoe Ski Club held its annual turkey dinner with an attendance of approximately 100 persons. A delicious meal was served promptly at six with many out-of-towners present. Two long tables almost the length of the hall were filled to capacity with many late comers eating at the "second table. One turkey was raffled off, Mrs. Joe Howrigan of Tahoe City being the lucky winner. A second was auctioned and bought by Otto Renfer of Lake Forest. A grab-bag of nick nacks was also sold for a very nominal charge, swelling the evening's profits somewhat. Bridge was enjoyed by those who remained after the dinner. Mrs. Stella Watson, in charge of the entire affair, aided by her crew of assistants, which included Mesdames Fred Cowell, Etta Marshall, Minnie Pomin Joe Howrigan, N. R. Mayfield and A. M. Henry, are to be highly commended for the capable manner in which the crowd was handled, and for the delicious dinner. Joe Howrigan managed the ticket sale and Jimmie Christie proved himself adept with a carving knife, for he it was who sliced the turkeys. Mrs. Stella Watson and the entire Ski Club Committee wish to extend herewith, thru this column, their sincere appreciation and gratitude for the lovley cakes donated by the ladies of the region, and for the ready and able assistance furnished by the members of the club and all others. Approximately $40,00 was cleared after all outstanding expenses had been met.

Lastly, I want to extend to all my readers most sincere wishes for a joyous Thanksgiving, and pray that peace and plenty may bide with all of you.

27TH CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE OPENS THANKSGIVING DAY

Thanksgiving Day marks the opening of the twenty-seventh annual Christmas Seal Sale, it was announced recently by the California Tuberculosis Association. All over the United States these colorful symbols of the gift of health will be mailed to every family. Within a few days, in forty one nations of the civilized world, millions of similar seals, each bearing the emblem of the double barred red cross, will be purchased to aid in the battle against mankind's greatest enemy tuberculosis.

The statement from the California Tuberculosis Association continued:

"For years our death rate for tuberculosis has been steadily reduced from 204 per 100,000 population in 1910, to 153 in 1920, to 81 in 1932. We may be thankful that this rate of decrease has not lessened over the past few years, because of the added burden of increased malnutrition and infection from this disease. If we are able to counteract the present increased morbidity from tuberculosis through the recovery of our complete program we may expect the decrease in the death rate to continue. The fatal termination of the disease among the large number of our people newly infected during the depression may still be prevented by the expansion of our case finding and early diagnosis work.

In some parts of the world, and in some localities in our country, the sad result of the slackening of anti-tuberculosis work during this time when there is a greater need, has already been felt. Years of costly effort will be necessary to regain this lost ground. We must do all in our power to prevent such failure in our home communities. Only thru adequate support of the organizations engaged in the battle against tuberculosis can this be prevented from happening here.

"Within a few days after Thanksgiving nearly everyone in the state will receive his quota of Christmas Seals. It is hoped that all those whose financial position makes it possible, will order more seals and that those who are not yet on our list of donors will order seals thru their local tuberculosis associations."

Loose Board in Floor Plays Trick on Visitors

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 30—(UP)—Employes at the new federal building here have ceased wondering at the strange antics of visitors to the office of Postmaster H. J. McCurry.

Callers barely get inside the door before they assume a blank look and start glancing at the floor. Occasionally they drop to their knees for a more minute examination.

Investigation by the mystified attaches brought the explanation. A loose board in the floor caused each visitor to believe he had dropped something as he stepped inside.

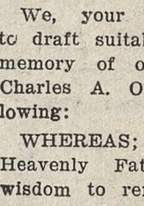
Packing the School Lunch Box



Selection of the proper food for the school lunch box is only one of the problems that should be met; packing the lunch so that it will arrive in a palatable condition is another.

Preferably, each article of food should be separately wrapped in waxed paper, or the container may be lined with one sheet. All heavy articles should be packed in the bottom of the box. Milk should be sent in a bottle or jar. Such fruits as bananas, apples and oranges pack easily and arrive in good condition.

The box itself should be one that is easy to clean and convenient to carry. The collapsible tin box that folds when empty meets these conditions admirably. For substitutes, a square tin cracker box, or a small tin pail with holes punched in the side are satisfactory.

A covered basket is the next best, although it will need to be lined with paraffin paper to protect the food in varying weather.

The paper box is the least desirable. It is easily soiled, it absorbs odors quickly and it cannot be washed.

ENTIRE TOWN IS EMPLOYED AT LARGE WINERY

SANTA ROSA, Cal., Nov. 30—(UP)—The little Russian river town of Asti, where every able-bodied resident helps make wine, laid claim today to possession of the world's largest winery.

Every one of the 245 working inhabitants of the community joined in the claim made by Enrico Prati, who serves not only as postmaster, but also as superintendent of the Italian Swiss Colony winery.

The new plant for making the mellow wines for which Asti is world-famous will have a capacity of about 4,000,000 gallons.

Every one of the 122,775,046 persons listed as living in the United States by the last census could take one glass of wine each from the plant and still there would be some left over, Prati said.

Before prohibition a winery at Winehaven in Contra Costa county had a capacity of 8,000,000 gallons. It is understood the plant is not in entire operation. Asti residents however, aim to build one that large before they've finished with improvements to the winery that started business here in 1883.

From Asti and other points will come sufficient wine to prevent any shortage of supply after prohibition repeal, according to the California Wine Producers' Association.

The association said that 40,000,000 quarts of "fine aged wines of domestic vintage" would be ready early in December.

In the meantime the grape brandy industry reported that it would average about 3,000,00 gallons this year. The brandy is used in fortifying wines.

Hotel men are undecided whether they want permission to serve liquor. They are wondering what they should do about guests who will insist upon bringing and serving their own hard liquor before meals. Retailers are not interested in hotel provisions, but they want licenses restricted so the few favored ones may prosper.

Hotel managers have admitted that during "the old days" they made their profits on wines, not liquor. They may legally serve all the wine they wish after December 5.

Meanwhile, with all the agitation rampant, the new law becomes effective December 5, and every effort will be made to enforce it. During the month of December, the board of equalization will have an opportunity to see how the plan will work. And the board alone is authorized to handle the entire setup. That alone is enough to cause many city and county officials to cry for a change.

ODD FUNERAL GIVEN SQUAW

BURNS, Ore., Nov. 30—(UP)—One of the world's strangest funeral processions was seen when Piute Indians of this section buried Norma Jim, Piute squaw.

Although the Indians have forsaken their original tribal ritual with its weird antics, they have not altogether accepted the white man's burial customs.

When the coffin was placed in the hearse, a dozen young bucks and squaws climbed in and sat on it all the way to the cemetery. After interment, they rode back to town in the empty carriage.

More motorcycles are used in Germany than trucks and automobiles combined.

Congressmam Buck Endorses Central Valley Water Project

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 30—Congressman Frank H. Buck today endorsed the Central Valley Water Project as a needed development, especially timed to aid industrial recovery throughout California.

The Central Valley Water Project, which will be submitted to California voters on December 19, is scheduled to give employment to more than 25,000 men for at least three years, and will bring $170,000,000 in federal funds into California trade, according to Congressman Buck.

"President Roosevelt, and members of his administration, have made it plain that the people must do their utmost to help themselves, through local or State Government, before financial aid from the Federal Government can be had," said Congressman Buck.

"In this instance California has provided a project which ultimately will finance itself by means of revenues it will create. The project will be an all-federal project, and cannot cost the taxpayers of California a single dollar.

"Assurance is forthcoming that the Federal Government will buy a sufficient amount of revenue bonds to permit prompt initiation of this great public work. To do so will be in line with the National Recovery Program.

"The need of prompt prosecution of this work should be clear to all who have faith in the future of California and the Nation. Obviously our present industrial and agricultural and shipping status will be much enhanced as national and foreign markets improve.

"All California should be alert to the immense advantages to be derived from flood control in the Sacramento basin, and the benefits of maintenance of summer flow in the Sacramento and San Joaquin Rivers, to aid navigation. They should also be alert to the vital necessity of restoring an adequate fresh waer supply for domestic and agricultural and commercial use in California.

The attitude of the Federal Government toward furtherance of other than national projects has never been so liberal as now. With the passing of the intensive recovery efforts, which furnish the motive for this liberality, it is doubtful if federal support for a loan or State-wide project such as the Central Valley Water Project, will ever be forthcoming again.

"With assurance from competent authorities that the Water Plan Legislation means what it says, and that there can be no violation of the basic rights of water users adjacent to sources of supply, the only other competent issues involved are the need of this project for the State's development, and its importance as a step toward recovery, by putting a large number of men to work over a period of several years."

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "God the Only Cause and Creator." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: :"The Lord reigneth, he is clothed with majesty; the Lord is clothed with strength, wherewith he hath girded himself:: the world also is stablished, that it cannot be moved. Thy throne is established of old: thou are from everlasting" (Psalms 93: 1, 2).

The following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "There is but one primal cause. The spiritual reality is the scientific fact in all things." (p. 207).

Special Thanksgiving Services At Christian Science Churches

"Thanksgiving" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Thanksgiving Day, November 30, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Golden text will be: "All things are for your sakes, that the abundant grace might through the thanksgiving of many redound to the glory of God." (II Cor. 4:15).

Other Bible citations will include: "And I heard a loud voice saying in heaven, Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ: for the accuser of our brethren is cast down, which accused them before our God day and night. Therefore rejoice, ye heavens, and ye that dwell in them. (Rev. 12:10, 12 to first period).

The Lesson-Sermon also will include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "A louder song, sweeter than has ever before reached high heaven, now rises clearer and nearer to the great heart of Christ; for the accuser is not there, and Love sends forth her primal and everlasting strain." (p. 568).

Freight Trains With More Than 57 Cars Must Add An Additional Caboose

The Railroad Commission has handed down a decision in a case instituted by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and Harry See, its representative, against the Southern Pacific Company, in which the latter company is ordered to equip all freight trains in excess of 57 cars, exclusive of the rear caboose, operating over the Sierra Nevada Mountains between Roseville, California, and the California-Nevada state line with an additional caboose to be placed midway between the rear caboose and the leading engine of the train.

Commenting on the case the decision of the Railroad Commission says:

"A careful consideration of all the evidence presented in this proceeding leads to the conclusion that the placing of an additional caboose in the center of long trains during the season of heavy snowfall would not only be consistent with safety but would promote safe and efficient train operation. The purpose of the company's rule requiring the men to remain in position on the outside of trains for the purpose of guarding against accident when descending steep grades cannot be fulfilled when weather conditions so impair the vision of the men as to defeat the purpose for which the rule was intended. Their attempted movement over the tops of snow covered cars in inclement weather would become a hazard rather than a measure of safety. The men do not seek a total abrogation of the rule, but ask only that they be afforded a refuge at a central point of the train from which they can continue their duties for the protection of the train to the best advantage possible under such conditions."

LODI, Cal., Nov. 30—(UP)—Next time M. Masui, 17-year-old Japanese boy feels sleepy he probably won't select a boxcar in which to take a nap.

Reported to authorities as missing, the youth was located in Roseville and returned to his parents at their Acampo ranch. He explained his absence thus:

"I no run away. Just lay down in box car to sleep while wait for folks come home. When wake I'm in Roseville."

FADS AND FRILLS IN EDUCATION ART AND MUSIC (Part Two)

Modern culture means more than a knowledge of dry academic matters. Modern art means more than the recognition of a few museum pieces of painting and sculpture.

Modern culture and art relate directly to living. The purpose of the school is to give the rising generation of American citizens the bases of good taste in living. For after all, art and culture are matters of good taste. The cultured man or woman has the good taste to be honest, to be moral and decent, to deal with other human beings in kindness, and to avoid practices and excesses which are individually and socially corrupting.

At present the homes, the schools, and the churches of the land are attempting to produce citizens of this kind.

The world is full of opportunities for people to achieve legitimate and sane happiness. But many agencies, pursuant to their motives of individual profit, are purveying the inartistic, the gross and the obscene —offering these as substitutes for legitimate and wholesome leisure-time activities.

We do not believe that such activities to be good and wholesome must be religious or so-called uplifting. But we do believe that they must be clean.

The home and the church have long been engaged in this struggle. For the most part the home and the church have used negative methods, warning against existing evils. There have been moral extremists whose doctrines and methods have not always been wise. Nevertheless these two agencies have been largely responsible for safeguarding the fundamental soundness and virtue of the people.

With the rise of the public school, a third agent has entered into the struggle. The methods of the public school are positive rather than negative. We are attempting to make art and music, and culture generally, function in the lives of our young. We want this culture to provide a basis for postive ideals and positive tastes which will not accept mere hilarity for happiness; which will not accept the debasing—though talently marketed—as wholesome; and which will not tolerate social and economic conditions which make the presence of these agencies possible.

The public school is not marketing fads and frills under the guise of education. Music and art are essentials in American education. Only through genuine culture can the soul of the nation be saved.

Some one has said, "Let me write the songs of a nation, and I care not who makes its laws." The ideals and aspirations, and to a very large degree the very thoughts of the people of nations, are determined and directed by music, art and literature.

FADS AND FRILLS IN EDUCATION PHYSICAL EDUCATION (Part One)

The public schools of California today constitute one of the chief agencies for the protection and maintenance of the mental and bodily health of California citizens. One of the primary aims of our public school program is to provide conditions under which the child can preserve a sound, healthy mind in a sound, healthy body.

In the thoughts of many citizens physical education in the schools is typified by high school athletics. Nothing could be further from the truth. High school athletics, properly administered and conducted, are of course desirable. But they are largely incidental to the real physical education program of the school. In fact school athletes, because they the more or less spectacular, and conducive to local pride, are often community projects rather than actual school affairs.

The actual physical education program of the school involves five fundamental purposes, which may be designated as protective, corrective, developmental, recreational and general character-training.

The first objective of the school's physical education program, the protective, is to make sure that the child's mental and bodily health shall not suffer because of his attendance in school. Good ventilation, good lighting, and proper heating are essentials in this connection. Care against contagion must be taken through provisions for health inspection.

We need to remember that the school is the meeting place for the children of the homes of the community. If there is a contagious disease in one home, the child from that home can easily be the means of spreading the contagion to other homes. The state through its laws demands of parents that they send their children to school. Parents have every right to expect that their children shall be protected in mind and body.

Certain sensory weaknesses, particularly visual defects, are aggravated by the conditions of study. Here, too, the child must be protected. Children susceptible to nervous disorders, and in the school there are many of these, must be discovered, observed, safeguarded. Bad posture habits sometimes grow out of school conditions; these must not be allowed to develop.
